BUZZ-SAW
CUTS 'EM UPLerner Shoe Co. Exhibit Shows
What Regals Are Made Of.

The Regal Buzz-Saw in the show window of the Lerner Shoe Co., 215 El Paso street, attracted considerable excitement yesterday. Hundreds of people watched the operator as he ripped and slashed Regals in every way imaginable to show just what the shoes are made of.
The "inside" of the shoes were clearly disclosed showing the linings, Oak-bark tanned soles, whole lifts in the heels, Oak-bark tanned counters and toe boxes, and other parts used in making Regals—parts which are of vital importance, but which are hidden from the sight of the purchasers.
Of course the onlookers began to wonder what was in the shoes they were wearing and made comparisons. Many went into the store and came out later in a pleasant mood with a box under their arms.
Exhibitions of a like nature will be given tonight, 7 to 9, and every day next week between 2 and 4 o'clock p. m.

AUTOMOBILE TO MAKE BIG TOUR

El Pasoan to Go to San Antonio From Here—Automobile Gossip.

R. McMichael will be off next week on an extended tour in his new Buick, 16. He will make the run to San Antonio direct, and then make a roundabout tour of eastern Texas points. The C. A. Stewart company will receive other accounts of the trip, which are promised Herald readers.

G. Onley, of Stafford, Ariz., has purchased a 1910 model Buick, 10, from the C. A. Stewart company.
The Auto "Trust"
The automobile has not become a real necessity. Announcement was made last month of the incorporation of the United States Motor company, with an authorized capital of $15,000,000. According to the plans as then announced, the new company is to acquire several of the prominent manufacturing concerns in automobiles and parts of same, to administer the business affairs of the constituent companies under a single management and to market the products under a general sales organization. The point is that the automobile has not yet become such a real necessity on every hand—not even having got down in price so the average man who can own a horse and buggy can afford a horseless car.

Le Roy, Steele, Barberich, Pape, Thompson; catchers, Carrigan, Donohue, Madden; infielders, Stahl, Bradley, McConnell, Wagner, Lord, French, Gardner, Meyer; outfielders, Speaker, Niles, Hooper, Thoney, Lewis.

riage—that it would be wise for any combine to attempt at this time to do what the bicycle makers did at even a more favorable time. In other words, the interest of the people in automobilism still needs to be aroused in many cases. Competition will serve this end better than the one management idea.

"Class Distinction"
"Class distinction" is the howl of the motorists about the dropping of that buggy right clause in the new vehicle ordinance.
The automobilists say that the light buggy is almost as dangerous to the auto driver as the bicycle.
"Why are not all bicycles classed alike," they ask, "if this is not class distinction and against the constitution of the United States of America, what the hell blaze, they ask, is?"
It sounded good and brave and Patrick Henrylike, but it did no good. The "buggy" clause is nil. Few automobilists, however, are dissatisfied with other parts of the new ordinance. Rules of the road and even speed regulations seem to be accepted as just and altogether right.

ATHLETES TO BE HERE NEXT WEEK

Many Basketball Games to Be Played at the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

Athletes of the southwest will congregate in the Pass City next week. It is the inflated ball and the net basket which lures the muscled sons of the land of sunshine. They will meet for the first time in lively contest for all basketball honors of this mammoth district.

It is the Southwestern Athletic federation which is bringing it about. It will be the first accomplishment of the association formed by H. L. Mitchell, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., in November. Already secretary J. W. Curd has received assurance of a large attendance, and the definite schedule is announced.

On Friday and Saturday afternoons and nights eight games will be played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. From Arizona will come the El Paso high school, and according to more than rumor, that team is going to do something. The A. and M. college will represent New Mexico, and from Colonia Juarez will come a team to try and carry away the honors to the Sonora colony. The Mormons were champions last year. El Paso will be represented by three teams—the Y. M. C. A. champions, the High school and the Military institute.

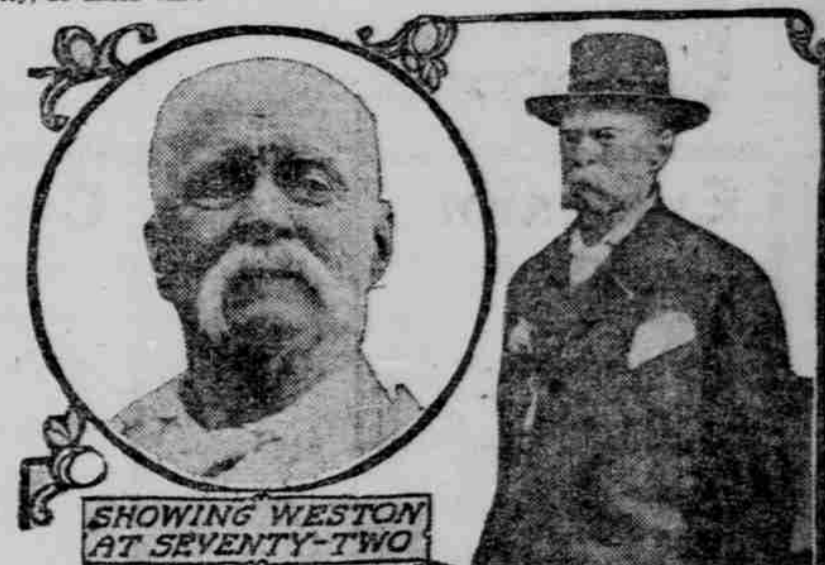

Play will be on the elimination tournament principle. Afternoon games are set for 3 o'clock and the night play at 8:15. A handsome wood and metal shield is the premium offer of the federation.

FORFEIT BASKETBALL GAME.

The game between the Mesa and the Lamar schools, for second place in the Grammar School Basketball league, has been called off. Second place goes to the Mesa boys by forfeit.

Walker Weston Is Six Days Ahead Of Schedule

Lakin, Kansas, March 12.—Edward Payson Weston left there this morning six days ahead of his schedule. He expects to take luncheon at Garden City, 25 miles east.

SHOWING WESTON AT SEVENTY-TWO

Great Walker Will Celebrate His 72nd Birthday Anniversary Tuesday.

There are wheeled palaces speeding along with comfort enjoying passengers, cushioned chairs, cosy bed chambers, cafes and all; there are reckless motorists whirling over rural roads, lounging in leathered cushions, at pleasure, composed; there are many modes of movement, methods of the age, all rapid but first comfort giving. Such is travel in the new southwest. All classes of men, who can, indulge. It is the whirlwind spirit of the age.

The Aged Walker.

But today in the age of all these things, there is a man walking along the iron ribbons of a transcontinental railway, where daily the rockets of steel and cushion flash past. The man has been walking for many days and nights with the spry stride of a master at the art, that thing of merit wooed by native sons of America, but now half lost in the whirl of steam and motor. But this man is spurning other than nature's method of movement, employing none but the God given power, the force of his own self—the engine of his muscle wrapped bones.

A Light Step.

Although his step is light, the rhythm of his body youthful, the energy of his every movement vigorous gray hairs crown the walker's head. Steel eyes glance out from shaggy brows beneath the rough cloth of his apparel. He is no youth in years—this wooer of the long ago art—yet in body he is young. In age he has passed a three score years and 10. Edward Payson Weston Tuesday next will be up to his 72nd milestone.

Not a Sport for Money.

This man Weston is not, nor never was, a swaggering lew-mouthed, money greater part of that pleasure is this: been a clean sportsman, relic of an old school. Weston does not smoke. He does not drink any liquor. He drinks little water. He eats sparingly. Only does he sleep profusion. His most violent disposition is to talk to little children and so to now and then pluck a flower from the roadside of his life. He is not rich, living by money secured in walking.

But he walks first for pleasure, and the greater part of that pleasure is this: To demonstrate to the world that legs were made to walk, not to be cramped beneath cushioned seats; to teach the little children that it is good to walk, healthful to walk, best to walk. That is his mission.

From Ocean to Ocean.

Now, Weston, walker, is plodding between the two great oceans in an attempt to make the trip within 100 days, and to make it as he believes man should make it, by the power of his own body, afoot. It is the most notable walk of the greatest walker of the world. It is an American attempt, resolutely to show that the men of the Americans of old, the men of the west and whang.

And he is doing it, this man Weston, in his 72d year. Out there in western Kansas next Tuesday, he will pass a new milestone of his life, as he is passing to one of his career. Anniversary of his birth will be celebrated, not in rest, nor song, nor wine, but in a quiet, steady following of the road, a telling lesson to those who stop at the milestones of life to wait a while in the shade of rest.

Not News But Views

Away with a rush and running strong at the first quarter—that's the White Sox smoker. The slogan, "Smoke with the White Sox at the White Sox Club," caught on like a "sure thing tip" on a long shot. Committees are now at work ribbing up the stunts for the Sox smoker, and there will be something doing every minute of the evening. The ticket sale promises to break all records for rapid fire delivery. Because of the limited capacity of the chamber of commerce, but 500 tickets were printed. Seats will be provided for this number, and those holding tickets will be given first chance at the underdog of whom others will have to stand or stay out, for the chamber of commerce holds only 500, and the rush is going to be worse than the Taft-Dias day doling.

Wingo Anderson is making good. Sounds good, although there is little, if any news in the statement, for the boy with the mighty left arm made good from the first day he warmed up on the El Paso grounds and slayed a few over on the Fort Bliss boys just for the practice. "Bad hop" Wingo is at his old tricks with the red legs at the Cincinnati training camp at Hot Springs, and Jack Ryder picks him as one of the few among the 14 pitchers who will get on steady. Wingo has the ability and Ryder picked his strong suit when he said he had the nerve. Bating with that one good arm of his, he slammed a couple of high balls out the left field fence in the first practice game. The sale of the Cincinnati sporting papers promises to be heavy this year among the El Paso fans, who are watching the Texas boy's work. "Good hop, old boy—good hop" Wingo kid.

With the exception of Charles Comiskey and Ted Sullivan, who is the guest of the big chief on the Sox training trip, the newspaper bunch who are covering the swing around the circle of the Sox for their papers will be the most interesting of the small sized army of invasion which will come here on March 29. Hugh E. Keough, who writes a column of whims for the Chicago Tribune under the typewriter name of "By Heck," Hugh Fullerton, who has furnished the most lucid articles on baseball for the magazines that have been written; Bill Barry, another clever sporting writer, and George Rice, the old war horse of the Chicago News, will be on the Sox special and will cover the two games in El Paso for their respective papers. A little entertainment on the side is being arranged for these chaps and they will be shown as many courtesies as the famous Comiskey drove of white leghorns while they are in El Paso.

Poor old Jake Schaefer, the veteran Millard player. He has run his last string, the buttons have been counted, and Jake's cue has been put away in the rack. He died in Denver Tuesday, where he had been living in the hope of recovering his health. The gamut player who ever chalked a eye, Jake was the peer of them all in his prime. He was born in Milwaukee in 1855, and held the championship in 1881 and 1882.
